PREAMBLE AND RESOLUTIONS

OF

THE LEGISLATURE OF MISSISSIPPI,

IN RELATION TO

The course pursued by the senators and representatives of that State in Congress on the question of the admission of California, and the questions before Congress at its late sessions involved in the slavery controversy.

December 17, 1850.

Read, and ordered to be printed.

PREAMBLE AND RESOLUTIONS

Of the legislature of the State of Mississippi, in relation to our senators and representatives in Congress.

Whereas, in a special message of the governor of this State bearing date the 11th of February, 1850, the following communication from the senators and representatives of Mississippi in the Congress of the United States was presented to the legislature then in session, to wit:

"Washington, January 21, 1850.

"Sir: We, the senators and representatives in Congress from Mississippi, feel it incumbent upon us to advise you, and through you our common constituents, that we have a well-defined opinion that California will be admitted as a State of this Union during the present session of Congress. The President earnestly recommended it, and we cannot be mistaken in supposing that a majority of both houses of Congress will be found to vote for it. Our individual positions have undergone no change. We regard the proposition to admit California as a State, under all the circumstances of her application, as an attempt to adopt the "Wilmot proviso" in another form. But, separated as we are from our constituents, and having no convenient means of consulting them as to their views on the new phase of this perplexing question, we desire, through you, to submit the single fact to the people and the legislature, that California will most likely obtain admission into the Union with her constitutional prohibition of slavery; and we beg leave to add, that we shall be greatly pleased to have such expression of opinion, by the legislature, the governor, and, if practicable, by the people, as shall clearly indicate the course which Mississippi will deem it her duty to pursue in this new emergency.

"Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

"JEFF. DAVIS,
"H. S. FOOTE,
"J. THOMPSON,
"W. S. FEATHERSTON,
"WM. McWILLIE,
"A. G. BROWN.

"His Excellency JOHN A. QUITMAN,
Governor, &c., &c.

"EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
Jackson, February 11, 1850.

"I do hereby certify that the within and foregoing letter is a true copy of the original, as filed in this office, the 11th day of February, 1850.

"JAMES McDONALD,
Private Secretary, &c."

And whereas the legislature, after mature consideration of the subject-matter of said communication, adopted, in accordance with the suggestions therein contained, among others, the following resolutions, as instructions to the senators and as expressive of their opinions to the representatives in Congress from this State, to wit:

"Resolved, That the policy heretofore pursued by the government of the United States in regard to said territory, (of California,) in refusing to provide territorial government therefor, has been and is eminently calculated to promote, and is about to effect, indirectly, the cherished object of the abolitionists, which cannot be effected by direct legislation without a plain and palpable violation of the constitution of the United States.

"Resolved, That the admission of California into the Union as a sovereign State with its present constitution, the result of the aforesaid false and unjust policy on the part of the government of the United States, would be an act of fraud and oppression on the rights of the people of the slaveholding States; and it is the sense of this legislature that our senators and representatives should, to the extent of their ability, resist it by all honorable and constitutional means."

And whereas the Hon. Jefferson Davis, one of the senators, and the Honorables A. G. Brown, Wm. McWillie, W. S. Featherston, and Jacob Thompson, members in Congress from this State, in accordance with said resolutions, and with the interest and will of the people of Mississippi, did, by their action in Congress, resist, by all honorable and constitutional means, the admission of California, with her existing constitution, into the Union as a sovereign State; and whereas the Hon. Henry S. Foote, one of the senators in Congress from this State, in violation of the spirit and intent of said resolutions, and in opposition to the interest and will of the people of Mississippi, did not resist by all honorable and constitutional means the admission of California into the Union as a sovereign State, with her existing constitution, but, by giving his support to the miscalled compromise reported by the Committee of Thirteen in the United States Senate, violated the instructions of the legislature, as contained in said resolutions, based upon his own request, and disregarded the interest and will of the people of Mississippi: Therefore,

Resolved by the legislature of the State of Mississippi, That the course of the Hon Jefferson Davis, as senator, the Honorables A. G Brown, Wm. McWillie, W. S. Featherston and Jacob Thompson, as representatives in Congress from this State, on the question of the admission of California, is approved, as representing the interest and will of the people of Mississippi; that the course of the Hon. Henry S. Foote on this question is not approved, being, in the judgment of the legislature, opposed to the interest and will of the people of Mississippi.

Be it resolved, further, That the course of the Hon. Jefferson Davis, as senator, and Honorables A. G. Brown, Wm. McWillie, W. S. Featherston, and Jacob Thompson, as representatives in Congress from this State, in their firm and consistent support and able advocacy of the rights and honor of Mississippi and the South, in all the questions before Congress at its late sessions involved in the slave controversy, is approved; that the course of the Hon. Henry S. Foote on all these questions is not approved, and this legislature does not consider the interests of the State of Mississippi committed to his charge safe in his keeping.

JOHN J. McRAE,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
JNO. J. GUION,
President of the Senate.

Approved November 30, 1850.

J. A. QUITMAN.

Resolved by the legislature of the State of Mississippi, That his Excellency Governor Quitman be, and is hereby, requested to furnish each of our senators and representatives in the Congress of the United States with a copy of the "preamble and resolutions" passed at this session of the legislature approving the course of the Hon. Jefferson Davis, the Honorables A. G. Brown, Wm. McWillie, W. S. Featherston, and Jacob Thompson, and disapproving the course of the Hon. Henry S. Foote, as senators and representatives in Congress from this State, with a request that said preamble and resolutions be presented to their respective branches of the national legislature.

Passed the Senate November 27, 1850.

J. A. ORR, Secretary,

Passed the House of Representatives November 27, 1850.

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI—Office of Secretary of State:

I, Jo. Bell, Secretary of State of the State of Mississippi aforesaid, certify the foregoing to be true copies of "preamble and resolutions of the State of Mississippi in relation to our senators and representatives in Congress," and also of a resolution in relation thereto, as the same are of file in my office.

REPORT AND RESOLUTION

ADOPTED AT THE

MARYLAND REFORM CONVENTION,

HELD AT ANNAPOLIS,

Approving of the measures of compromise passed at the last session of Congress.

December 18, 1850.
Ordered to be printed.

Convention, Annapolis, December 12, 1850.

Gentlemen: I am requested by the convention now sitting to transmit to you a copy of the report and resolutions unanimously adopted in relation to the measures of compromise passed by the Congress of the United States at its last session.

I am also instructed to ask you to lay this report and resolution before the Senate of the United States.

I am, sirs, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. G. CHAPMAN,
President of the Convention.

Hon. James A. Pearce,
Thomas G. Pratt, U. S. Senate.

Mr. Chambers, from the committee, presented the following report:

Whereas the constitution of the United States was designed more effectually to secure the civil and political rights of the citizens of every part of the Union, and especially to protect their persons and property, as well in other States as in the State in which they might reside; and whereas, amongst the rights of property, there was none more generally known or more distinctly recognised than that of holding slaves; and whereas the peculiar risk of loss to which this species of property was exposed was so obvious, and the absolute necessity of a suitable provision to guard against it so universally felt, that no one hesitated to acknowledge that, without such provision, the Union could not have been framed; and whereas certain persons in various portions of the Union, instigated by a spirit of fanaticism, have combined for the purpose of openly resisting and defying the guaranties of the constitution and laws, by which alone the slaveholding States can be assured of the rightful possession and just protection of their property: we, the members of the convention of Maryland, lately elected from the body of the people, and intimately acquainted with their feelings and opinions, deem it proper to declare, in calm and deliberate terms, what we believe to be their views in relation to the exciting subjects to which we have referred, and do therefore—

1st. Resolve, That the constitution of the United States has accomplished all the objects, civil and political, which its most sanguine framers and friends anticipated, and that the affections of the people of Maryland are justly riveted to its principles, by the memory of the sacrifices of the wise and good men who framed it, as well as by the blessings it has so liberally dispensed to our country.

2d. That a proper appreciation of these blessings should lead every State in the Union to adopt all such measures as from to time may be necessary to give complete and full effect to any provision of the constitution, or of the laws pursuant thereto, intended for the protection of any portion of this great family of States.

3d. That, while we do not conceal that the several acts of Congress passed at their late session, relating to the admission of California, to the territorial governments of Utah and New Mexico, to the adjustment of the boundary of Texas, to the prohibition of the slave trade in the District of Columbia, and to the reclamation of fugitives from labor, do not, to the extent we desired, meet the just demands of the South, nevertheless, viewing these several acts as parts of an entire system, to be adhered to and maintained as a whole, proceeding on the basis of compromise, and intended, by a permanent adjustment of so many critical questions, to heal the public agitations and perpetuate the Union, they have received our acquiescence, and have inspired us with admiration of those eminent statesmen who, rising above the influence of party and sectional considerations, periled their well-earned reputation for the enduring welfare of their country.

4th. That the vigorous and faithful execution by the general government of all laws made in pursuance of the constitution is its primary duty, and affords the only security for the just protection of the rights and property of the citizens, and for the permanency of the Union; and it is equally the duty of all good citizens to encourage and support the officers of the government in the execution of the laws, and to discountenance and rebuke the efforts of those who seek to subvert them; and while, therefore, we entertain every proper confidence in the ability and determination of the Chief Magistrate of the Union faithfully to perform his duty in the present crisis, and take the opportunity to tender to him our assurances that in any emergency that should require it he may safely rely upon the cordial co-operation of the people of Maryland, we cannot withhold the warmest expression of our firm and continued reliance upon the patriotism of those of our countrymen, in all sections of the Union, who have fearlessly asserted the constitutional rights of the South; and, in view of the calamities which must ensue if those rights continue to be violated, we would earnestly suggest to the governments of the nonslaveholding States the propriety and importance of enacting such laws as will facilitate the recovery of fugitives from labor; and upon the citizens of every State we would anxiously urge the absolute necessity of maintaining and enforcing each and all of the measures of adjustment adopted at the last session of Congress.

5th. That, of the aforesaid series of laws, that intended to insure the restoration of fugitives from labor is the only one professing to protect the peculiar rights and institutions of the southern States from the mischievous hostility of a wicked fanaticism in other portions of the Union, is but a tardy and meagre measure of compliance with the clear, explicit, and imperative injunctions of the constitution, and holds out the only hope that the protection which the South was authorized to expect from the Union of the States to this species of property will be afforded to them; and, being the chief inducement to the South for its accession to the compromise, the repeal of that law, or the failure to enforce its provisions, could only be regarded as evidence of a determined purpose in other States to violate the sacred charter of our rights, or a want of ability in the general government to enforce the laws made for our protection, and, in either event, there would be a failure to comply with the solemn obligations which give to the constitution its chief value and binding force, and which could not be violated, or deliberately evaded, without leading to a dissolution of the Union.

Referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals, and ordered to be printed.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS in relation to a national railroad from the Pacific ocean to the Mississippi river.

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and Assembly of the State of California, That our senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested, to urge upon Congress the importance of authorizing, as soon as practicable, the construction of a national railroad from the Pacific ocean to the Mississippi river.

2. Resolved, That they be further instructed and requested to urge upon the national government, with the view to facilitate the accomplishment of the great work contemplated in the first resolution, the immediate organization of an efficient engineer corps to make complete surveys and exploration of the several routes which have been recommended to public notice as practicable for the line of said road.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of an original joint resolution now on file in the office of the secretary of state.

MEMORIAL

THE LEGISLATURE OF OREGON,

PRAYING

For the extinguishment of the Indian title and the removal of the Indians from certain portions of that Territory; payment of the debt growing out of the recent Indian war, and the debt occasioned by the maintenance of the provisional government; establishment of military posts for the protection of emigrants; donations of land to citizens and emigrants; change in the place for delivering the mails transmitted from New York; construction of roads; purchase of the land held by the Puget Sound Agricultural Society; exploration of the Territory; establishment of a branch mint; and the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia river.

January 6, 1851.
Referred to the Committee on Territories.
January 10, 1851.
Bill S. No. 405.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The legislative assembly of Oregon Territory respectfully submit the following memorial:

Your memorialists cannot adequately express the warm emotions of thankfulness with which they, and the people of Oregon generally, hailed the arrival of a territorial government established by your authority, and sustained by your munificence and power. Reposing once more in peaceful security under our country's flag, we feel renewed courage and hope in the adoption of those measures which are necessary to our internal peace and general prosperity. With high considerations of cordial gratitude we derive encouragement, from what you have already done, to lay before you the following brief exhibition of the great wants of this Territory, and ask for them your generous and liberal consideration.

The first, and one of the most momentous interests of this Territory to which we wish to invite your attention, is the extinguishment of the Indian title to the soil, and their early removal from those portions of the Territory needed for settlement, and their location in some district of country where their wretched and unhappy condition may be ameliorated. At present, the thinned and scattered fragments of once numerous tribes are intermingled with the whites. They are mutually annoying to each other; but while, through the operation of natural causes and of diseases incident to a vicious life, the Indians are rapidly diminishing in numbers, the moral and civil interests of the white race, equally with the claims of humanity, require the removal of the former to some place where, under the fostering care of general government, their condition may be improved. In time past, when they were weak and we were strong, they were preserved in quiet and friendship by the assurance that they should be paid for their lands. This promise has been so long deferred that they begin to manifest more anxiety on the subject; the necessity, therefore, of early attention to this matter becomes the more pressing. May we not, then, cherish the confidence that this subject will receive that consideration which its importance demands?

While on the subject of our Indian affairs we may with propriety call your attention to our pecuniary liabilities, growing out of the late Cayuse war. That war was conducted with all the energy, boldness, and success characteristic of the American people; and though all was not accomplished that was desirable, yet it secured peace and quietness to the country, and made such impressions on the Indian tribes, in reference to the martial prowess of Americans, as forms a strong guarantee for their future peacefulness. The debt, however, contracted in the prosecution of that war remains uncancelled; and when you are made acquainted with all the circumstances under which the debt was contracted, you will doubtless concur with us in the conviction that it should be speedily liquidated. From the very necessity of the case, the war was conducted with reference to the most rigid and scrupulous economy; yet the cost of the whole campaign amounts to a considerable sum. All the claims and accounts have not been as yet fully settled. The sum total, however, will not exceed and may fall short of the sum of $200,000. So soon as the exact amount is ascertained you will be informed.

This debt, it should be remembered, is due to many of the private citizens of the country, who, as a general thing, are in limited circumstances, and many of them feel sensibly the need of their dues. Having come forth nobly in the hour of need, and having made great personal and pecuniary sacrifices in the public cause, on their behalf we would earnestly pray you to make such an appropriation as will secure to our creditors their dues as speedily as they shall be properly authenticated.

In addition to the above debt, we would further represent that there is a civil debt of about ten thousand dollars, occasioned by the maintenance of a provisional government for the protection of the lives, rights, and liberties of our people, previous to the organization of our present territorial government. That debt we feel in honor bound to pay. But inasmuch as general government is bound, as well by the principles of humanity as by long and well-established practice, to render protection to its own citizens, especially when located upon and cultivating its own soil; and inasmuch as this debt has been contracted by the people in rendering to themselves that protection which general government ordinarily affords, but has in this instance withheld, it certainly appears to your memorialists nothing more than a simple act of common justice to relieve us from the burden of this debt, as well as that growing out of the Cayuse war, by your making an appropriation sufficient for their liquidation.

That emigrants from the States, and the more remote frontier settlements, may enjoy entire security, a number of military posts are essentially necessary. There is but little ground to fear the occurrence of another general war with any of the Indian tribes, yet both the emigrants and remoter settlements may be annoyed, and perhaps experience loss, through the incursions of small predatory bands of Indians. To guard against these evils the erection of a few military posts will be of important service. The erection and maintenance of suitable forts, at appropriate places, is therefore a measure the consummation of which will meet the cordial approbation of your memorialists.

But there is a subject of deeper interest to the people of Oregon than any which occupies the attention of your memorialists; a subject the bare mention of which causes a sensation of thrilling solicitude to rush through every heart; a subject involving not only the rights and feelings, but the harmony and contentment of every American citizen in Oregon; a subject of no less interest and importance than the disposition made by your action of the land and land claims in Oregon Territory. Your memorialists deem it entirely unnecessary to inform your honorable body, that every American citizen in Oregon who came hither from the States previous to the organization of the present territorial government, and now above the age of eighteen years, expects now, ever has expected since his arrival here, and ever will expect, until he shall be mortified by your decision to the contrary, to receive at your hands not less than six hundred and forty acres of land. Of the existence of this expectation, engendered and fostered, as your memorialists sincerely believed, alike by the acts of both houses of Congress and of the people in masses, your honorable body must be aware. But your memorialists refrain from entering into a history of the various and numerous facts which have given life to the expectation that a donation of land would be made to every American citizen in Oregon. These facts, and the means of acquiring a knowledge of them, are more immediately in the reach of the members of Congress than of ourselves. Let it suffice to say, that your memorialists are confidently assured that they do no more than utter the universal opinion of American citizens here, when they say they believe that the United States government is solemnly bound, not only by an obligation of honor, but of virtual contract, to donate land to the people of Oregon; and if, as your memorialists and the entire people of Oregon believe, the general government is morally bound, if not so by express contract growing out of her own acts and the acts of her people, to donate to each American citizen here, above the age of eighteen years, six hundred and forty acres of land, and also a smaller quantity to those under eighteen years of age, then certainly your honorable body cannot regard us as stepping aside from our appropriate province if we respectfully remind you of the fact, and ask you to execute her contract according to its tenor.

Believing then, as we do, that simple justice demands in behalf of the people here, at the hand of general government, a land donation as above; and being confidently assured that that government which we are ever proud to call our own will never so far forget the respect due to her own character, to say nothing of the claims of humanity, as to refuse a simple act of justice to an enterprising and self-devoted few of her own citizens, your memorialists would still further pray, that while the land in Oregon be sectionized as speedily as possible, provision may be made by law that each citizen entitled to a donation be secured in the identical land claim or section of land he was holding by virtue of the laws of the provisional government when that government was superseded by the organization of the present government. All the inconvenience this can occasion will be a number of fractional sections, in those parts of the Territory where land claims have been made. The location and amount of these fractions can be easily ascertained, and no evil to the general interest of the country can result; while, adopting this course, and this alone, the rights of our people will be preserved inviolate. But if you refuse to do this, and donate the sections as they fall in the government survey, the existing land claims of our citizens might be intersected by a number of sections; the claimant's barn falling on one section, his house on another, his well and garden on another, and his wheat fields on another. Such a state of things would work utter ruin to our people; and the determination by Congress to legalize it would cause the hearts of very many to sink within them, and spread blight and mildew over the hitherto prosperous condition of this interesting and growing colony.

Your memorialists would further pray, that your honorable body would pass a law to continue the donation of land in graduated quantities to American citizens who may hereafter wish to locate in this Territory, so long as there remains any of the public domain unoccupied. It is a truth, known to your honorable body as well as to us, that the hope of receiving a donation of land was the chief motive power in bringing into this Territory its present American population; and the same cause will undoubtedly produce a similar effect in the future. But should you resolve to shut down the gate of donation, and bring the land into market, you would at once stop the flowing stream of emigration into this Territory, and thus leave our population to increase by the slow process of its own natural growth; and the consequences will be that we will long remain a feeble burden on your hands. But continue in good faith the inducement which brought our present population hither, and very soon we will be asking for a place in the proud galaxy of your numerous sisterhood.

And your memorialists would still further pray, that your honorable body would so amend the organic law of this Territory as to provide that whenever the school sections of land provided for in that act may include or conflict with a citizen's, the citizen be allowed to hold his land claim entire; and that land of equal value be set apart for school purposes, in some other place where there is no claim.

And your memorialists further pray that arrangements be made with the company carrying the United States mail from New York to Astoria, at the mouth of the Columbia, to deliver the mail at Portland, on the Willamette river, instead of Astoria, its present place for delivery. Nearly the whole population of Oregon reside in the valley of the Willamette, above Portland: so that the interests of the country demand, in the strongest terms, that the mail should not only be delivered at Portland, but also that the steamers, which have not as yet appeared in the Columbia, should be required to commence immediately, and run regularly into this port.

Your memorialists would further represent that the people of this Territory, having been long deprived of the pleasures of social correspondence and the means of general intelligence, feel a solicitude warm and deep in having post offices and mail routes established in this Territory, and that they be speedily and efficiently put in operation; and, still further, we would pray your honorable body to place your wandering children on the Pacific shores on the same footing with their transmontane brethren, and deliver us our letters and papers at the same rates of postage you do to them. We cannot feel that to distinguish us in this manner from all other American citizens is either generous or liberal; and may we not indulge the hope that the liberal and noble spirit of the American heart will prompt you to grant our prayers in this behalf?

Your memorialists respectfully call the attention of your honorable body to the pressing necessity of having some important territorial roads located and opened as soon as practicable. It is important, both for civil and military purposes, that a road be opened from Puget sound to some point on the Columbia below the Cascades; one from Puget sound to a point on the Columbia near Walla-Walla; one from the Dalles of the Columbia to the Willamette valley; and one from Astoria, or some other point at the mouth of the Columbia, to Willamette falls; one up each side of the Willamette, from the Columbia to the upper end of the valley, and thence one to some point in Sacramento valley, in California. For these roads we ask your liberal consideration.

Your memorialists wish the attention of your honorable body to be directed to a matter of difficulty between American citizens and "the Puget Sound Agricultural Company" in relation to the extent of their claims. The company claim a large tract of country enclosed by arbitrary and imaginary lines, and deny the right and resist the attempts of American citizens to locate on said lands; while our people contend that the company have no right to any other lands than those actually enclosed, and in use by them at the time of the ratification of the Oregon treaty, under which they hold their claim. This state of things is a great detriment to that part of our Territory, and must retard its settlement. We therefore pray your honorable body to purchase the land which that company hold by treaty, and throw open the door of that country to our hardy and industrious citizens.

Your memorialists further respectfully invite your attention to a matter of great interest not only to us, but to yourselves and to the scientific world. We refer to a thorough scientific exploration of the geological and mineralogical character of this country. From the disturbed and broken appearance of the whole country, the numerous caverns, hot and boiling springs, and the scattered masses of lava and scoriated rocks, it must be evident, even to the casual observer, that this part of the continent has been riven and broken up by fearful earthquakes and fiery volcanoes. It cannot be doubted by any that such a survey would tend greatly to the development of the hidden treasures of mineral wealth concealed in our mountains, as well as to add to science and the natural history of the American continent. Enough has already been done in the way of discovery, by private enterprise, to assure us that not only iron, coal, and lead, but also gold and other precious minerals, do exist, perhaps in great abundance, in this Territory. We therefore ask for this subject your calm consideration.

Your memorialists respectfully represent to your honorable body the importance of establishing a branch mint in this Territory. In consequence of our proximity to the gold regions of California, our citizens are constantly going and returning to and from the mines. Large amounts of gold dust are thus brought into this Territory; and though this adds to individual wealth, yet it constitutes an inconvenient and troublesome medium of commerce, subjecting our worthy and laborious people to great losses and pecuniary embarrassments. The establishment of a branch mint here would not only remove this evil from our people, but the profits of the establishment would go far towards the early liquidation of the indebtedness of this Territory. Permit this prayer of your memorialists to enlist your early and favorable consideration.

And your memorialists finally pray your honorable body to direct your attention to the appropriation made for the improvement of the entrance into the Columbia river. This appropriation your memorialists assure you is, at the present prices for material and mechanical labor, so entirely inadequate to the purpose, as not to justify even commencing the work. Yet the interest of this Territory, as well as of the general commerce of the Pacific, require the early improvement of the mouth of the Columbia. We therefore earnestly pray your honorable body so to enlarge the appropriation for this purpose as to secure the early completion of the improvements proposed.

By favorable action on the various subjects brought to your notice in the foregoing memorial, and on such other matters as our delegate may bring before your honorable body, you will perform acts of appropriate duty; and your memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c., &c.

Signed by THE COMMITTEE.

REPORT

A COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATURE OF VIRGINIA,

ON

The subject of outstanding Virginia land bounty warrants.

January 27, 1851.
Ordered to be printed.

The committee to whom was referred so much of the governor's message as relates to the subject of revolutionary claims, have had the same under consideration, and submit the following report:

From information derived from the land office of Virginia, and the General Land Office at Washington, they find that numerous warrants, granted as bounties for military service in the Revolution, are still outstanding and unsatisfied. The amount thus outstanding considerably exceeds half a million of acres.

These claims to bounty land, your committee believe, have the clearest foundation in law. By various acts of assembly, commencing early in the war of the Revolution and extending to its close, Virginia, holding immense tracts of unappropriated territory, and acting partly under the earnest recommendations of the continental congress, promised large bounties in land to those of her sons who should engage in the war of independence. And to make good her engagement out of the vast domain she then held, a specific fund was reserved, consisting of a "tract of country bounded by the Green river, the Cumberland mountains, the Carolina line, the Tennessee river, and the Ohio river." (See Hening's Statutes at Large, vol 10, pp. 55, 56.) And in the event of this reservation proving insufficient, it was provided that the "deficiency should be made up to the said troops, in good lands to be laid off between the rivers Scioto and Little Miami, on the northwest side of the Ohio river, in such proportions as had been engaged to them by the laws of Virginia." (See Hening's Statutes, vol. 10, p. 565.)

Thus, it will be seen, was the most solemn engagement made by Virginia to her revolutionary officers and soldiers, and a fund provided to meet the engagement.

But the fund reserved having, for various reasons hereafter to be enumerated, become unavailable, and the bounty of the State being thus frustrated, application was made, about the year 1830, to the federal government for appropriations to satisfy the outstanding warrants; and Congress, having succeeded to the proprietorship of the fund out of which Virginia designed to make good the promised bounties, and acting on the equitable principle of substitution, responded to the application, by making several appropriations of scrip for the desired purpose, the last of which took place in the year 1835.

Since that time all further appropriations have been resisted, and the grounds of opposition, so far as your committee have been able to ascertain them, are as follow:

I. It is said that a "greater amount of land bounty has been allowed by the State of Virginia than the quantity of good claims which ever could have existed against her."

If this were true, it would furnish strong reason against any further appropriations, but this objection has no foundation in fact.

To ascertain with precision the number of persons entitled to land bounty for revolutionary services is scarcely practicable, but an approximation may be made sufficient for all practical purposes.

According to the opinions of Colonel Porterfield and Chief Justice Marshall, (both of whom were officers in the Revolution,) there were at least 500 in each regiment entitled to bounty land. (See papers in appendix marked A and B, taken from report of Committee on Revolutionary Claims made at session 1834–'35.)

Now the regiments raised by Virginia were the following:

Continental regiments - - - - -	15
Harrison's regiment of artillery, which had 80 officers, and is considered equal to two infantry regiments, but put down at	1
First State regiment - - - - -	1
Second State regiment - - - - -	1
Marshall's artillery regiment - - - - -	1
Illinois regiment, (Col. Clarke's) - - - -	1
Crockett's regiment - - - - -	1
State garrison regiment - - - - -	1
State cavalry - - - - - -	1
State navy, consisting of more than 25 vessels, and estimated as three regiments - - - - -	3
	26

Besides these regular regiments, there were other and numerous classes that came within the provisions of the land bounty laws of Virginia. Among these are: 1. All Virginians in the service of Congress—(see vol. 10 Hening's Statutes, pp. 467 and 539;) estimated in Hubbard's report, 1st session 28th Congress, at five regiments.

2. Corps credited to Virginia, as Bland's regiment of cavalry, Lee's legion, Armand's corps, Stephenson's rifle regiment—to which may be added Dabney's legion, formed near the end of the war, equal in all to at least four regiments.

But, for greater safety of calculation, put down the two last mentioned classes as constituting together only four regiments, and we have thirty regiments at least that were in the service and pay of Virginia; and adopting then the estimate of Col. Porterfield and Judge Marshall, of 500 to each regiment entitled to land bounty, we have 15,000 as the number of persons so entitled.

But according to the report of the register of the land office, hereto appended, (marked C,) only 6,819 who performed service have received land bounty, which shows conclusively that the amount of good claims has not been overgone, and that a large number are yet outstanding; though, in consequence of the great lapse of time, few, if any, can now be established.

The approximate accuracy of this calculation is confirmed by the report of the First Auditor, (see appendix D,) from which it will be seen that there are on the regular army rolls the names of 12,711 persons who settled their depreciation at the end of the war. Besides these regular rolls, there are others which may be denominated, in contradistinction, irregular—such as regimental pay-rolls, quartermasters' accounts, old day-books and journals, papers found some years since in the attic story of the capitol, &c., all which disclose numerous names not found on the regular rolls. Moreover, the latter do not exhibit the names of that numerous class that died in service, or were slain in battle, or of Virginians in the service of Congress, or of those promoted into the line of other States. Adding these deficient elements, there will be found a striking concordance between the calculation just submitted and the data of the auditor's report

The general accuracy of your committee's estimate is further sustained by the very numerous acts of assembly for the raising of troops for the revolutionary service. They extend from July, 1775, to October, 1782, and number thirty-seven. On reference to the number called for by these several acts, it will be apparent that a very large number must have acquired title to land bounty, under the numerous and very liberal land bounty laws of Virginia. (See abstract B, Rep. No. 57, 1st session 28th Congress, p. 159.) There is no foundation, then, for the idea that the amount of good claims has been exceeded.

II. It has been objected, further, that a larger number of officers have received bounty land than ever could have been really entitled.

The number of 630 has been arbitrarily assumed as the highest that could have been by possibility entitled, and the probable number has been as arbitrarily set down at 500.

The fallacy of this estimate is conclusively demonstrated by the letter of the register of the Virginia land office, (see Report No. 457 before referred to, p. 87,) which shows that up to 31st December, 1784, 812 officers of the Virginia lines had received their land warrants. Now, as these warrants could not have been well improvidently issued so soon after the war, when the service was fresh and the proof of it readily accessible, the conclusion is irresistible that the foregoing estimate is utterly incorrect.

But what is the true number entitled? An approximation is all that can be attained.

According to the report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, made the 18th April, 1844, (see Report No. 457 before mentioned, page 167,) the number of officers in a Virginia revolutionary regiment is estimated at 43; but his estimate includes neither the surgeon nor surgeon's mate, nor chaplain, who must be added to the Commissioner's estimate—say 46 to each regiment.

Now, taking 30 as the number of regiments (and there were more,) and 46 as the number of officers to each, and we have the number of 1,380; to which add one commander-in chief, two major-generals, 14 brigadiers, and 34—being the excess in Harrison's artillery regiment over the usual complement of officers—and we have a total of 1,420. Increasing this aggregate by the number of those who died in service or were killed in battle, (and they were many,)—of those who retired after a service of three years, leaving their places to be supplied by others,—of those who from time to time retired as supernumeraries, and of those who were promoted from the line to the rank of officers, and who were entitled as officers, though they had not served three years as such,—taking these numerous classes into the estimate, and we have the best ground for assuming that Virginia had in service, at various periods in the Revolution, a much greater number of officers even than 1,420.

Perhaps a nearer approximation is arrived at in the report of the Committee on Public Lands, made to the House of Representatives in May, 1844, an extract from which your committee beg leave to quote:

"That the estimate of the number of Virginia officers assumed in the report of the select committee is erroneous, will manifestly appear by a reference to the number and character of those officers who received land at the close of the war. These were, besides the commander in-chief, 2 major-generals and 11 brigadiers in the army, of whom 10 received land within a few months after the close of the war. Virginia had 39 colonels and 47 lieutenant colonels in all, of whom 62 received land within a year after the close of the war. Now the single fact that Virginia had 14 generals and 86 colonels and lieutenant-colonels, shows conclusively that her forces must have exceeded vastly the number estimated in the report of the committee; which estimate forms the basis of the speculative reasons and results exhibited in that document. It is not assumed, nor intended to be claimed, that Virginia had at any one time as many officers in actual service as are above estimated; some became supernumerary, and some resigned after three years' service—all, nevertheless, entitled to Virginia land bounty. The same casualties apply to the inferior officers, whose numerical proportion to the colonels could not have been less than 40 to 1—estimating ten companies to a regiment, and four officers to each. In truth, the number of inferior officers, from greater exposure to hardship and danger, who were killed, died in service, invalids, prisoners, &c., was, it is fair to conclude, much beyond a mere numerical proportion compared with the generals and colonels; yet, if even this rule be adopted, and 43 be taken as the medium between colonels and lieutenant-colonels, and that number multiplied by 40, it exhibits 1,720 officers of the continental and State lines who would be entitled to land, independent of the navy, which had a larger number of officers in proportion to the men than the lines in the land service had, from the fact that the warrant officers in the navy, ranking with the subalterns on the land, were very numerous. These all were entitled to land."

The regular army rolls, too, show the number of 1,342 officers—(see auditor's report, marked E.) The scattering rolls disclose a considerable addition. Besides, there are absent from the regular rolls the names of those who died in service; of those officers of other States who, by the resolves of Congress, were transferred to the Virginia line—of Virginians promoted into the line of other States, who were, nevertheless, entitled to bounty land from Virginia—of Virginians in the service of Congress, or of the officers credited to Virginia, as Lee's legion, Stephenson's rifle regiment, and the like. Taking these missing elements into the calculation, there is no substantial variance between the estimate last considered and the auditor's report now here referred to.

Your committee conclude that the amount of officers' claims has not been overdrawn, and that many even of this class are yet outstanding.

III. It is objected, also, that there has been too much laxity in the allowance of these claims to bounty land; that they have been passed on "loose and insufficient testimony;" that it is a most easy matter to obtain a land warrant, and that, accordingly, many spurious claims have been allowed.

This objection is at once met by the high character, personal and intellectual, of those whose business it is made by law to adjudicate the claims—the governor and council of Virginia. It involves indeed a gross indignity to the executive of Virginia, and through it to the whole State, and would not be now noticed by your committee but for the large interests involved, and the belief that there is undesigned misapprehension of the facts of the case.

These considerations alone induce them to say, what they now with the utmost confidence aver, that there is no foundation whatever, in point of fact, for the imputation just referred to. It is well known to all who have practical knowledge of the subject, that instead of a culpable laxity in the adjudication of these claims, the most rigid, nay, inexorable scrutiny, has been observed. No class of claims was ever harder dealt with. Your committee need furnish no further evidence of this than the report from the secretary of the commonwealth, annexed to this report, from which it appears that out of 3,348 claims presented, 2,085 were rejected, and only 1,263 allowed. (See paper marked E.)

IV. The antiquity of the claims is made ground of exception. Why, it has been asked, are so many recently brought forward and outstanding yet?

There are many answers: First. Early after the war, the warrants were of little value, being worth but a few cents per acre—owing to the fact that they were to be located in a wilderness country, inhabited almost exclusively by the wild beast and the savage; many, therefore, who were entitled did not choose to apply for their warrants.

Second. The expense and difficulty of location deterred many from making claim to their bounties.

Third. On the 6th January, 1785, the surveys of the military reserve, in consequence of the apprehension of Indian warfare and violence, were, by proclamation of the governor of Virginia, suspended, and location of course prevented. (See Hening's Statutes, vol. 11, p. 447.) This inhibition, originating in State authority, was continued by the treaty of Hopewell, (federal authority,) until the year 1818, when the Indian title was extinguished; and then Kentucky interposed and forbade further locations in the Kentucky reserve. So that the holders of State line warrants had no opportunity for locating them after the year 1785; and those who had not at that time taken them out, had no inducement to do so until the State or Congress should provide a new fund for their satisfaction. In the mean time all the "good lands" in the northwestern or Ohio reserve had been exhausted by the laying down of continental warrants. Of necessity, therefore, (a necessity unavoidable, so far as claimants are concerned,) there must be many claims to land bounty for revolutionary services still due and unpaid. So far as the State line warrants are concerned, the holders had but three years within which to make their locations.

Fourth. The discovery in 1832 of a large mass of documents relating to the army and navy of Virginia in the war of the Revolution has brought to light numerous claims of this character, which otherwise had never been even preferred. These documents, of themselves, established numerous claims.

Fifth. The large amount absorbed in Virginia land bounties has been made the subject of assault. A large amount, it is admitted, has been so absorbed, but it is not because the claims are not sound and valid, but in consequence of the large amount of bounty granted by Virginia to each of her officers—a liberality she could well afford, because she had the most abundant means for its dispensation. The average quantity allowed each officer by Virginia was 6,751 acres, just fourteen times as much as was allowed by Congress to officers of the United States. (See letter of Commissioner of General Land Office, report No. 457, 1st session 28th Congress, p. 169.) The very large aggregate, then, of lands consumed by Virginia bounties, need not excite surprise nor form cause of exception to the general validity of the claims.

Sixth. It has been further objected that Virginia, in 1815, adopted a new rule of evidence in the allowance of land bounties; that is, allowed them whenever "satisfactory evidence was adduced to the executive that the party was entitled." This is true, and it was the just and reasonable rule—just that which Congress itself adopted immediately after the war, for the Secretary of War was instructed to allow land bounty to all who showed themselves entitled by the evidence of the army returns in his office, or "such other sufficient evidence as the nature of the case might admit." A rule, surely, which was adopted by the federal government in 1785, and which it has practised on to the present hour, cannot be wrong when adopted by Virginia thirty years thereafter.

Your committee conclude that the claims to land bounties are founded on the most solemn engagements of Virginia to her officers and soldiers, and are nothing invalidated by the objections usually taken to them.

The only pertinent inquiry is, who should discharge those that are unpaid? Your committee think there is the clearest obligation on Congress to make the payment.

There cannot be a doubt that Virginia, in making to the United States the cession of her magnificent domain, designed to make the amplest reservation for the bounties she had promised the patriot band that had fought the battles of her own and the continental liberties. She could have had no other design, unless it were her purpose to make engagements just to repudiate them. If, therefore, by mistake, accident, or other cause, the intended reservation has proved insufficient, it becomes the federal government, on every principle of equity and every consideration of honor, to make good the deficiency to the utmost acre. Having received at the hands of Virginia an empire of territory, subject to a lien for the benefit of her officers and soldiers, and having urged upon Virginia and the other proprietor States the policy of making liberal donations of land to those who should aid in the struggle for independence, Congress is now called on, by the highest equity and by good faith, to "step into the shoes" of Virginia, and satisfy every land warrant which the latter engaged to pay, and which, through her constituted tribunals, she has recognised as valid.

But the obligation of the United States to satisfy the outstanding warrants rests upon higher grounds than mere equity. It is strictly legal; as much so as the obligation of one who receives the money of another, to make it good to him for whom it was "had and received."

By the treaties of Hopewell, concluded between the United States and the Cherokee and Chickasaw Indians, November 28, 1785, and January 10, 1786, the very tract of country which Virginia had reserved and set apart for bounties to her troops was wrested from her possession by the government of the United States, for the benefit of the Cherokees and Chickasaws, (then in actual occupancy.)

The 4th article of the last treaty of Hopewell is in the following words: "If any citizen of the United States or other person, not being an Indian, shall attempt to settle on any of the lands hereby allotted to the Chickasaws, to live and hunt on, such person shall forfeit the protection of the United States, and the Chickasaws may punish him or not, as they please." A similar provision in behalf of the Cherokees is to be found in the first treaty of Hopewell. (See volume 7 United States Statutes at Large, pp. 24 and 25.)

Your committee cannot refrain from quoting, on this point, the following extracts from the speech of Benjamin Watkins Leigh, commissioner from Virginia, on the subject of the military land claims, delivered before the legislature of Kentucky, in the year 1822:

"When the superintendents came to Kentucky, in 1794, to lay out and survey the lands according to the act of October, 1783, they found that all the lands on the Tennessee, and between that river and the Mississippi, were claimed by the Indians, and in their possession. They called in vain for the military aid they were authorized to require of their fellow-citizens of Kentucky. Men could not leave their homes and their families defenceless, exposed to the devastation, the extermination, and all the nameless horrors of savage warfare. Their excuse was founded on an imperious necessity which no authority could control; yet, without such aid, it was utterly impracticable to explore the country below the Tennessee, and thus acquire that information of its topography so essential to certainty of location. All was done, however, that could be done —the warrants were numbered; and in virtue of part of them, during the summer of 1784, entries were made for the State line, of lands lying below the Tennessee, to the amount of about 261,000 acres, according to such vague information as the superintendents and surveyors possessed, or could collect. A large portion of warrants were never located at all. To survey was impracticable, and it was never attempted. Even the process of location was soon suspended. In October, 1784, the legislature, upon the recommendation of the governor, supported by information previously received and then communicated by him, of the danger of provoking Indian hostilities all along the western frontier of the United States, authorized the executive to suspend the surveying and taking possession of the land reserved for military bounties northwest of the Ohio, and on this side below the Tennessee. But at the same session, while it was required that all other entries made in the county surveyors' books should be surveyed, and the surveys returned on or before the 1st of February, 1786, and that all future surveys should be made and the surveys returned within one year from the date of the entry, the entries made in virtue of claims for military services were cautiously excepted out of this provision. They were not straitened by any limitation of time.

"A proclamation was promptly issued by the executive, suspending the operations of the military claimants, their superintendents and surveyors, in both the specified tracts of country; and, though this inhibition was revoked in 1787, so far as it regarded the country beyond the Ohio, yet it never was revoked as to the country below the Tennessee, on this side. For, in the mean time the whole of this tract was allotted by the treaty of Hopewell, of January, 1786, to the Chickasaws and Cherokees, to live and hunt in; and the possession of it guarantied to them by a provision, that if any of our citizens should encroach upon it, they should forfeit the protection of the United States, and the Indians might punish them or not, as they pleased. Nor was the Indian title ever extinguished until the year 1818.

"Thus, then, at the time of the separation of Kentucky from Virginia, the tract of country below the Tennessee stood reserved by law for military bounties—assigned, by consent, for the bounties of the State line; only a small part of it located—none surveyed; the exact location probably imperfect; many warrants not located at all, and the claimants prevented, as well by the law of Virginia as by the treaty of Hopewell, from making surveys and further locations, but (as was most just) restricted by no limit of time, and free to proceed whenever the impediment should be removed."

Thus it seems that by the act of the United States government itself, a large portion of the Virginia military reserve southeast of the Ohio river, nearly the whole of it, was forcibly (we may say) wrested from the true owner, and diverted from the sacred object for which it was by that owner designed. Upon what principle of law or honesty the general government is not bound to make up to Virginia, in "other good lands," the full amount thus taken from her, your committee are utterly at a loss to conceive. For, if the lands set apart by Virginia west of the Tennessee river, but taken from her by the treaties of Hopewell, had been added to the reserve between the Miami and Scioto rivers, the fund would have been ample to satisfy all the engagements of Virginia to all her troops.

As it is, no ample equivalent has been made, nor will it have been, until Congress shall satisfy every Virginia military land warrant outstanding.

It has been attempted, it is true, to invalidate this legal claim upon the general government, by denying that Virginia ever had any real title to the lands which she ceded to that government. It is a conclusive reply to this objection, that the title of Virginia to these lands has been solemnly settled by the highest judicial tribunals of the land. (See Johnson and Graham's lessee vs. McIntosh, 8 Wheaton's Rep., and Wallace vs. Parker, 6 Pet. Rep.) In the latter case, the Supreme Court said: "Congress, by accepting the cession by Virginia, admitted the right to make it, and that right has never since been drawn into question."

Nor is Congress less bound by the principle and spirit of the general assumption act of 1790 to satisfy these claims. That act provided for the payment of the revolutionary debts of the several States, which "accrued for the general or particular defence during the war;" and the bounties engaged by Virginia to her officers and soldiers being a "debt for the particular and general defence," Congress is bound to pay it, unless a debt contracted to be paid in land is less meritorious and obligatory than one contracted to be paid in money.

On every ground, then, the government of the United States ought to provide for these claims by further appropriations of scrip.

And as there is a considerable quantity of refuse lands in the military district in Ohio, which will not be taken up in land bounties, because they are not "good lands," and as they never can be made available for any purpose, either by the federal government or the State of Ohio, until relieved of the lien which Virginia now holds upon them, your committee advise that, in the event of a further appropriation of scrip, to satisfy the outstanding bounties, a surrender be made of these refuse lands to the national government, or to the State of Ohio, whichever may be deemed most advisable.

Your committee recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That our senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their best efforts for the passage of a law making a further appropriation of scrip for the satisfaction of the outstanding Virginia land bounty warrants for military services in the war of the Revolution.

2. Resolved, That in the event of such appropriation, Virginia ought to cede to the United States the refuse lands in the military district between the Scioto and Miami rivers in the State of Ohio; and that on the happening of such event, the governor of this commonwealth be required to execute the proper deeds of cession.

3. Resolved, That the governor of this commonwealth be requested to transmit to each of our senators and representatives in Congress a copy of this report and accompanying resolutions and documents.

APPENDIX.

A.

Taking into consideration the number of officers and soldiers who died in the service, and thereby became entitled to bounty land from Virginia, the number who served three years, and thereby became entitled, and the number who were entitled for services to the end of the war, I think it probable there were a thousand to each regiment who were so entitled; but I state the opinion, with confidence, that there were at least five hundred.

ROBERT PORTERFIELD.

B.

I should not think there were a thousand to each regiment entitled to land bounty, but the number cannot, I think, have been short of five hundred. I allude to the regiments actually raised in the Virginia line on continental establishment.

Ordered to be printed.

Cincinnati, December 14, 1850.

Dear Sir: I take the liberty of sending you a communication containing a few suggestions of my own, based upon my own actual experience, upon that engrossing subject, "explosions of steam-boilers," together with some plan, which has long been a matter of desire to accomplish, for the benefit of the human family.

So many modes have been suggested, that the people have come to the conclusion that there is no alternative but to submit to the risk and loss of life and property. Many of these plans are objectionable because they generally embrace the same principle—namely, depriving some of the privilege of being employed, and of employing whom they please, and where they choose to be employed. In this country no such law can be passed; and if passed, will be of no effect, and will not stand.

The great question is, what are the causes of explosions? and the next is, what remedy can be applied? If we can truly find the cause, the remedy is easily arrived at. Now, upon a subject where there is such diversity of opinion, and from truly great minds, it is not for one like me to approach or to attempt any learned display, either in words or figures, for I generally deal in matters of fact more than in theory; nor would I now attempt anything of the kind, but for the fact that almost every day we are called upon to read an account of some terrible explosion, causing immense loss of life, to say nothing of the loss of property. But what I have to say is from my own experience. Deeply impressed with the truth of these impressions, yet preferring to test them more fully by the experience of others and the results of their labors, I have been content to look on, and have seen the failure of nearly every expedient that the mind of man is capable of advancing. I have even felt a delicacy in putting forward any of my experience, except in private conversation; and now, if the few remarks sent you will be of any service, or will throw any light upon the subject by which a law can be framed, they are at your service, and you can use them or throw them aside.

Respectfully, yours, &c.,

W. W. GUTHRIE.

Hon. D. STURGEON,
U. S. Senator.

[Endorsed.]

MY DEAR SIR: My brother William enclosed the communication herewith transmitted for my perusal and correction; but my time is so much occupied with other matters, that I cannot undertake the task.

I agree with him in the main, and think it full time that Congress should do something towards reforming the evils referred to.

The bill which passed the House last session is entirely inappropriate to the western steamers; and if enacted into a law, cannot be enforced beneficially.

J. B. G.

EXPLOSIONS OF STEAM-BOILERS.

There are three known causes generally given in explanation for an explosion of a boiler, or the collapsing of a flue:

1st. Incompetency of the engineer in charge.

2d. Insufficiency of water in the boiler.

3d. Over-amount of pressure for the strength of the boiler.

In an investigation of these causes, any practical engineer or theorist will at once admit that they are all so intimately blended in each other, that perhaps in no one instance did ever an explosion take place without each bearing its proportion of blame; yet, either one separately would undoubtedly cause an accident of this kind, and any discussion on any one of these points alone as a cause will prove very unsatisfactory, for two of them at least cannot be separated, and in general all accidents or explosions must be attributed to "increased pressure."

1st. The incompetency of the engineer does not consist in his incapacity to undertake or not being capable of taking charge of a boiler, but in the known fact that we are ignorant of the full extent of the generation, power, and elasticity of steam, and its sudden and instantaneous accumulation. This fact is proved beyond a doubt by the explosions of boilers when in charge of men of well known reputation, of experience, and of capability.

2d. Insufficiency of water. This cause has seldom if ever produced an explosion, but it has produced what is termed a "collapse of flues," which is never so disastrous in its results as an explosion, and is caused by the water coming in contact with the heated iron of the flues: for instance, in the careening of a boat, the water will very naturally find a level—consequently some of the iron will become red hot, and, in coming in contact with water, will necessarily weaken it: then if there be pressure, the iron will give way. Now, no engineer should be held responsible for this, for it is not in his power to prevent passengers and others from running on one side of the boat. It is also a mistake to suppose that when water is too scarce in the boiler, the sudden injection of either warm or cold water will produce increased pressure: on the contrary, it will diminish it, for in no case can the water be thrown into the boiler with a temperature equal to what is already there; and unless the temperature is at least equal, there can be no increase of pressure arising from it. Hence an explosion from this cause must be attended with over-amount or increased pressure.

3d. Over amount of pressure to the strength of the boilers. This is the evil; and here lies the root of all the disasters, with their attending loss of life, that have ever occurred; and there are so many of them, that it is time something was done to prevent them. This cause so fully involves the character of the engineer, that it is almost impossible to separate negligence from ignorance when an explosion occurs. No man knows fully, either by theory or experience, the sudden accumulation of steam, and its consequent power or elasticity, as used by all. I will give you some of my own experience in the use of this agent, in illustration of these facts. Take the common safety valve, loaded to a pressure of 125 pounds to the square inch (area,) steam not of sufficient power to raise the valve, and let there be but a momentary suspension of its use; then resume its use, and there will be seen a sudden increase in the power of steam beyond all human calculation. Remember, this increase does not show itself until a communication is opened with the atmosphere from the boiler; that is the moment when this sudden accumulation takes place, and is accounted for by the fact that, in the process of generating steam, the pressure must not be too great on the water, else steam cannot rise, unless a communication is open for its passage; but if the passage be closed, no bubbles can rise, and the water is surcharged; and when a passage is opened, who can tell the amount of the increase, or who be responsible for its effects, under existing circumstances?

There is one other point in illustration of over pressure being the cause, and man the instrument to produce it, through ignorance. Suppose the valve to be loaded at 125 pounds to the inch: so long as steam does not raise it, we are sure that there is not that amount, though we cannot tell exactly; but let the pressure raise the valve, and who can tell how much more there is? No one—it is all guess-work. Now, suppose that a boiler had been once strained at 150 pounds pressure: to approach that point again would be dangerous. To argue differently would be to suppose that a substantive material is not susceptible of wear and tear. And let one of those momentary stops take place, the steam being at a pressure of 125 pounds; can any man calculate the increase? No one looks for a moment at the consequences, until the results happen; and then all cry out, "the engineer is incompetent, and the water was too low in the boilers." But there is another curious fact connected with this cause. The engineer knows, so long as his valve does not rise, that steam is below his usual point; but after the naked valve rises, he begins to hang on more weight to the end of a line running over innumerable pulleys, the friction of which he is wholly ignorant of—all is guess-work. But suppose we guess at 5 pounds additional, (it is as likely to be 20 pounds;) that looks small, and incapable of producing any disaster, but the amount on the whole boiler is frightful. Take a boiler 42 inches diameter, 30 feet long—the circumference is 131 inches: then 30 feet $\times$ 12 = 360 inches; then $\frac{131}{2} \times 360 \times 5 =$

167,000 pounds or about 59 tons pressure upon a boiler already strained to its utmost. There are many other facts which have suggested themselves to me, calculated to make me doubt my own abilities as a competent engineer. How far others have observed them, I do not know; but, having witnessed the failure of other views, I will no longer hesitate about my own.

The next question is, how can these evils be avoided, and what agents are to be controlled? It is evident that if we can control heat or fire, and steam, the whole difficulty is surmounted: either of these agents has produced loss of life, and in the case of explosions the loss is the result of both. But explosions can, and have, taken place by and under diminished heat; and a collapse has been the result of increased heat without a corresponding increase of steam; hence it is necessary to control both, particularly as steam is produced by heat. In order to illustrate this, it will be necessary to show from experience what has actually taken place. First in regard to heat: flues of boilers have been collapsed by the careening of a boat, whereby one or more of them became exposed to the direct action of fire, and the iron is necessarily weakened, when, upon coming in contact with water, (the result is increased pressure, but it does not follow that the mere pressure is the cause of the collapse, for the pressure may have been incomparably less than the boilers have before sustained, yet it requires pressure to cause the result, but not to the extent that is generally supposed,) the expansion and contraction necessarily weakens it, and it must give way; on the other hand, steam will continue to increase after the fire has been diminished, because the heat is so distributed over a large body of water, iron, and steam, that its decrease is slow, and so long as its temperature is above 212° it will produce steam. We also have a greater proportion of increased steam as we rise in the degrees of heat than the increase of heat would seem to warrant. For instance, by experiments in the Franklin and other Institutes, we find that it requires 212° heat to produce a pressure equal to the atmosphere, 15 pounds to the inch; and it requires 250° heat to produce 30 pounds pressure: in other words, it required 38° heat to produce 15 pounds pressure of steam, when 350° heat gave 135 pounds pressure, and 358° gave 150 pounds: in other words, 8° heat produced the same result (15 pounds pressure) that it required 38° to do before steam became of any use as a propelling power. It is evident from these facts that the power of steam is increased in greater proportion than heat; hence it becomes necessary to provide a remedy against undue heat, as well as against undue pressure. Suppose, for instance—and no doubt the case has occurred often—that a boiler has already 125 pounds pressure, and one of the flues becomes bare and exposed; is it presuming too much to suppose there is 8° additional heat thrown upon that exposed surface, the result of which is 15 pounds additional pressure? No; this very fact explains why only one boiler gives way, as is generally the case, from a collapse. I know of nothing that will so effectually save the public from loss of life and property as the enactment by Congress of a law prohibiting the use of steam above a given point—say 100 pounds steam to the square inch—based upon a test pressure by hydrostatic power of at least double that amount. This will guard us against accidents arising from increased pressure; for every one knows, who has ever been engaged in using this powerful agent, that at 100 pounds pressure, man can effectually control it; but over that amount, the ingenuity of man has not yet been able to master it, even in the production of material to contain it; and experience has also shown that there is no safety for man or property at any amount above 100 pounds. Even the engineer in charge, I care not how reckless he is, is always in dread; though, to keep up appearances, and forced by circumstances, he is compelled to risk the lives of all, in order to retain his situation. Many, no doubt, go on through ignorance; but the man that can assert that he feels under no apprehension while employed in the capacity of an engineer is not fit for the trust, nor should he be allowed to retain his position.

In regard to a remedy against "undue heat," there has nothing come under my observation, so effectual, so simple, as "Evans's safety-guard," the invention of Mr. Cadwallader Evans, of Pittsburg. This invention is invaluable, and is acted upon, or has its action, from "increased heat;" being placed upon the flue of the boiler, it is impossible to impart heat to the flue without also affecting the safety-valve: it has its action solely from heat, and is not affected by pressure, nor does it indicate increased pressure, only so far as the pressure is the result of heat above its fusibility, the alloy being made to fuse at a given temperature. But the beauty and value of this invention is its effectual guard against accidents arising from "insufficiency of water," and the exposed condition of the flue in cases of careening. The heat is certain to act upon it, and it must and will give notice. Not only does it give the notice of danger, but by its action does effectually prevent the accident or calamity from taking place. It does so from the fact that, by its action, it opens a passage for any increase of pressure before that pressure takes place; a vast difference, you will observe, from that of waiting for the increased pressure to open a way for itself, which it sometimes does with terrible results.

I have tried in this communication to give you as correct an idea of the causes of explosions of steam-boilers as my time will admit, without going into details, which would be more satisfactory to myself, but which would tire your patience, and perhaps be less satisfactory; and the nature of the subject is so full, and so much can be said on it, that with a few remarks I will close.

I think I know the feelings of nine-tenths of the engineers, and can safely say that they would hail with delight the passage of a law by Congress, enforcing some such views as have been suggested. The entire community, you know, want some protection against these too frequent disasters, and any legislation, not involving the rights of citizens, or a few, would be better than none.

There are but two points to legislate on: 1. A law compelling all persons using steam as a motive power not to go above 100 lbs. to the inch, based upon a pressure, by hydrostatic power, of at least double that amount. 2. A law compelling all steamboats to place "Evans's safety-guard" upon each outside boiler, (when there are more than one.)

There are objections arising to each of these, which would at first seem insurmountable First, reducing the power to 100 lbs. would necessarily affect all who have built their boats and machinery adapted to the present use. Let the law so declare that it does not affect anything now in use, but only those yet to be constructed: in less than five years they would all be out of existence, for three years is more than the average of a boat's life, and five years is the average of one who follows it, in its present form. Second, the navigation of our western waters requires extreme power, with small weight, on account of depth of water. To suppose that the mind of man would not overcome this obstacle, would be ridiculous: on the contrary, the passage of a law like this would open a new field to our mechanics and men of genius, and we would soon have a new order of things; besides, it would tend to place all this business in the hands of responsible men.

In regard to compelling all boats to use "Evans's safety-guard," there would be some opposition—for the invention has its enemies as well as its friends. The objections to it arise from the fact that many engineers have testified to its being an infallible cure and preventive against explosions; when it is well known that accidents have happened under it, in which case its friends have always tried to produce the impression that the engineer in charge had tampered with it—thereby destroying its usefulness; when, if there had been a candid admission on the part of its friends that these accidents arose from a cause (pressure, as I have endeavored to show) beyond its control, or what it was designed for, they would have been generally adopted. But after an accident takes place under the operation of an invention which has for its object a preventive, it is looked upon with suspicion, and is usually termed a humbug. Now, such has been the history of this truly great invention: at first, it went into rapid use, and was being placed upon all steamboats; when one or two of these occurrences took place, it went back as rapid as it advanced, and for a number of years has been laid on the shelf. Public attention is again being called to it; but years will go by before it recovers its former position. Mr. Evans, I think, never claimed for his invention these extreme powers; but his friends did, and that killed it. But in cases of "undue heat" there is no mistake about it; it will not only warn you that there is danger, but will, by that action, provide a remedy to avoid it. In my opinion it has no equal. But it will be said that Congress has no authority to pass a law compelling boats to adopt this or that invention, and make them pay for it. So far as I am able to learn, opposition to a law of this kind arises from the fact that Congress compels them to pay Mr. Evans a premium on an article that they consider of no importance. That could be obviated by purchasing the right to use it from Mr. Evans, and make its use a gift to the world. The public are deeply interested in the matter; therefore, it would be a public benefit. Congress has thrown away millions upon less worthy objects than this.

I cannot close this (too long) communication without calling your attention to one or two facts connected with the remedies proposed by many for these too frequent disasters.

It is supposed by many that if Congress would pass a law establishing a board of examiners to pass judgment upon the merits of engineers, and say who shall and who shall not, who is capable and who is not, to have charge of the boilers and engine, much if not all the difficulty would be removed, and these accidents would cease—thereby throwing all blame upon the engineer. I think I have shown that he is not always responsible for accidents of these kinds; and if I have not clearly done it, here is a fact that will at least show there would be no security under such a system. Alabama has passed a law (I think in 1836) establishing a board of examiners for this very purpose, and with full power to say who shall and who shall not run an engine—making it an offence punishable by imprisonment and fine to resist their decrees; and that board have exercised the authority without mercy, and is composed of some five practical engineers commissioned by the State authorities. Now, what will you say when I tell you that members of this very board of examiners have been launched into eternity without a moment's notice—victims to their own ignorance? But we need not go to Alabama for evidence to show that this is really no remedy. We have among us societies of engineers, composed of good and reliable men, whose sole object is to protect each other from the encroachments of what is termed "strikers," (a term for ignorant engineers,) and yet we see almost daily these men fall by the same disasters—all alike are liable. Do not understand me to be opposed to employing good, reliable men; on the contrary, none should be engaged to take charge of boilers but those of good moral character—men of merit and of intelligence. But I have cited these facts to show that there is no security under the system proposed, nor can there be so long as steam is used in its present power, and that men ought not to be held accountable for results entirely beyond their control. Congress should pass a law limiting the amount of pressure and other guards for safety; then, if an accident happen, hold those in charge responsible for life and property to the fullest extent: because, first, experience has shown that man has capacity to control steam at that pressure, both in its effects as well as in the strength of material to contain it; second, in case of an accident, the fact would be self evident that gross neglect and indifference was the cause.

All of which is respectfully submitted, by

RESOLUTIONS

LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA,

IN FAVOR OF

The repair of the public piers at Chester.

February 10, 1851.
Laid upon the table, and ordered to be printed.

RESOLUTIONS relative to the public piers at Chester.

Whereas the legislature of this Commonwealth caused to be erected in the harbor of Chester, on the Delaware river, at an expense of nearly nineteen thousand dollars, two public piers extending into said river, for the accommodation of the shipping thereon:

And whereas the said legislature, by the act of April eleventh, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five, ceded the same to the United States, such cession to take effect when the Congress of the United States should extend the said piers, the act of August seventh, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine, requiring the expense of the repairing of light-houses, public piers, &c., to be paid out of the treasury of the United States:

And whereas, by the act of Congress of March second, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven, the cession of said piers upon the terms thereof was accepted, and the United States thereby became absolute owner thereof, under the obligation to keep them in repair, imposed by the said act of one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine:

And whereas the said piers are, and for some years past have been, in a state of great dilapidation, so much so that the original design is in a great degree frustrated: Therefore,

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the senators and representatives of this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States be requested to ask for the appropriation of such sum out of the treasury of the United States as will be necessary to the repair of said piers.

RESOLUTIONS

LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA,

IN FAVOR OF

Granting to soldiers and sailors of the last war with Great Britain, and of the Indian wars, the same quantity of bounty land as was allowed to those who served in the war with Mexico.

RESOLUTIONS relative to granting a portion of the public lands to soldiers and sailors who served in the war of 1812, and soldiers of the Indian wars.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That inasmuch as many of the soldiers who were recruited into the service of the United States before the conclusion of the war with Mexico were scarcely a month on duty, and yet received one hundred and sixty acres of land, it is, in the opinion of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, both just and equitable that those who served in the war of eighteen hundred and twelve, whether upon land or water, as well as in the Indian wars, should receive the same number of acres of the public domain.

Resolved, That the governor be requested to forward a copy of the foregoing resolution to each of our senators and members of the House of Representatives in Congress, and that they be requested to vote in favor of the grant herein recommended.

MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE OF VIRGINIA,

IN FAVOR OF

The establishment of a line of mail steamers between the United States and the western coast of Africa.

February 11, 1851.
Ordered to be printed.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the members of the General Assembly of Virginia, respectfully represent to your honorable bodies that they have adopted this method to express their warmest approbation of the principle of the measure now before Congress to establish a line of steamers to the western coast of Africa. The passage of such a bill, with such modifications as the wisdom of Congress may devise, will, in their opinion, eminently encourage the emigration of the free colored population from this country to Liberia—will also greatly increase our steam navy, and thus obviate the necessity of maintaining at great expense to our government, and risk of the health and lives of our officers and seamen, a squadron upon the coast, in itself inefficient in the suppression of the slave trade; and will rapidly extend the mail service and commerce of the United States. These are all objects, by universal consent, greatly to be desired, especially in a national point of view.

Situated as Virginia is, with a free colored population of 53,757, the presence of which is destructive both of the security and moral habits of her slaves, their removal from her limits has been for many years an important object of her domestic legislation—a legislation which, though liberal in its spirit, has been defeated in its objects by the expense of transportation to Africa; an expense too onerous for a single State to sustain. Nor can her citizens fail to feel an interest in every plan that will increase and extend the rapidly growing commerce of the United States. This plan, we are also satisfied, will introduce into Africa a legitimate, peaceful, and valuable commerce, in the place of the infamous slave trade, and will eventually lead to the civilization of that immense, distant, and benighted continent.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

OF

THE LEGISLATURE OF OREGON,

PRAYING

An appropriation for the payment of expenses incurred by the provisional government of Oregon in the Cayuse war.

February 25, 1851.

Referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed.

To the honorable the House of Representatives and Senate of the United States:

Your memorialists, the Legislative Assembly of Oregon Territory, legally assembled on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1850, for themselves and in behalf of the people of said Territory, respectfully represent unto your honorable body, that, on the 27th of November, A. D. 1847, the family of Dr. Marcus Whitman and others, amounting in all to about twelve or fifteen persons, then stationed at the Wailatpoo mission, on the Walla-walla river, in Middle Oregon, were brutally massacred by the Cayuse Indians and others, besides fifty or sixty persons taken prisoners at the same time and place. When the news of this event reached the Willamette valley, a short time afterwards, the people of Oregon had organized a provisional government, his excellency George Abernethy, governor. The provisional legislature was in session at the time. The lives of American citizens, consisting of defenceless women and children, husbands and fathers, had been taken in cold blood. Everything indicated a determined combination on the part of the vast hordes of Middle Oregon to proceed to exterminate the American settlers in the Willamette valley. The government of the United States could not be reached in time to avert the threatened calamity. The safety of the inhabitants called for immediate action; that the war should be carried into the enemy's country; and that we should not by delay invite the Indians (emboldened by their success) into our midst, and thereby make each man's fireside the scene of Indian warfare.

In view of these things, and under circumstances so urgent, the legislature of the late provisional government, then in session, were invoked to adopt such means of defence as were in their power. Accordingly, an act was passed by that body, dated December 9, 1847, authorizing the governor of the Territory to issue a proclamation to the people of the Territory to raise a regiment of riflemen by volunteer enlistment, not to exceed five hundred men, to be subject to the rules and articles of war of the United States army, and whose term of service shall expire at the end of ten months, unless sooner discharged by the proclamation of the governor. By the terms of this act, this regiment "was to rendezvous at Oregon City on the 25th of December, A. D. 1847, and proceed thence with all possible despatch to the Walla-walla, for the purpose of punishing the Indians, to what tribe or tribes soever they may belong, who may have aided or abetted in the murder of Dr. Marcus Whitman and his wife and others, at Wailatpoo." The act also provides for the appointment of "one colonel," "one lieutenant-colonel," and "one major," to officer said regiment with the usual number of subalterns; also one commissary general. By the terms of a subsequent act, passed at the same session of the legislature, each soldier was to receive one dollar and a half per day, and furnish his own horse, arms, and accoutrements. No provision made for officers.

The army was raised and proceeded to the country of the enemy, where, after various success, a peace was at length effected. The army then returned home, and was disbanded by the proclamation of the governor July 5, 1848. The Territorial legislature assembled under the act of Congress approved August 14, A. D. 1848, organizing the Territory of Oregon, passed an act dated August 31, 1849, entitled "An act to provide for settling Cayuse war claims." This act provides that there shall be elected on joint ballot of both houses a "commissioner on Cayuse war claims," whose duty it shall be to investigate all claims growing out of or pertaining to the Cayuse war.

Section 3 of said act provides that, "in the investigation of any claim under this act, the oath of the claimant may be taken; but no claim shall be allowed upon the oath of the claimant alone, unless corroborated by such other circumstances as, in connexion therewith, shall satisfy the commissioner of the truth and justice of the same."

Section 4 provides that, "in all cases wherein the price or value may be fixed by law, for the thing or things upon which a claim may be based, the said commissioner shall be governed thereby; and in all cases wherein no price or value shall be so fixed, he shall determine the value thereof according to the equity and justice of the case."

Section 8 of the act provides that, "at the commencement of every session of the legislature, said commissioner shall report a list of all claimants, and amount allowed each."

By the report of said commissioner, made to the present session of the legislature, a copy of which is hereunto annexed (marked A) and made a part of this memorial, it appears that he has investigated, allowed, and certified claims against the late provisional government of Oregon, after deducting all payments and offsets, the sum of $76,830 24. By the same, it appears that his predecessor "so audited" the sum of $10,400 29—making the total amount audited and certified by the present commissioner and his predecessor $87,230 53. In his report, the commissioner estimates the probable expense of the war at one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Your memorialists represent unto your honorable body, that the commissioner, by the act appointing him, is empowered with full authority to take in his possession all books and papers, of whatever kind or nature, pertaining to the Cayuse war; to subpœna witnesses and take testimony in the investigation of every claim that may come before him; so that, in the opinion of your memorialists, it is highly probable that no one claim has been allowed which law and justice would forbid.

The debts due the several individuals, as ascertained and set forth in the commissioner's report, are for services rendered and materials furnished by the citizens of this Territory, many of whom by so doing were left in a suffering condition. Men left families depending on their daily labor for subsistence, farmers turned their horses loose from the plough in the furrow, and furnished them to the army for transportation. They have waited nearly three years, and received as yet no remuneration. Your memorialists respectfully but firmly conceive that the expenses of the war should be borne by the nation at large; that it was a war fought in self-defence for the United States by the people of this Territory. The time has come when the men who spent their time, money, and property in the prosecution of that war should be remunerated. The Territory is too weak to do it, and meet the demands made upon her resources by her growing interests. To conclude, your memorialists respectfully but firmly pray your honorable body at your present session to appropriate the sum estimated by the commissioner on Cayuse war claims, according to the annexed report, to be expended (under the direction of the legislature of this Territory, or by such officer as Congress may direct) in the payment of the expenses incurred by the late provisional government of Oregon in the Cayuse war. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

Passed the House of Representatives December 12, 1850.

Passed the Council December 12, 1850.

R. WILCOX,
Speaker House of Representatives.
WM. W. BUCK,

OF

THE LEGISLATURE OF OREGON,

PRAYING

The establishment of a marine hospital at Astoria.

FEBRUARY 26, 1851.
Referred to the Committee on Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Oregon would respectfully represent the very great necessity for a marine hospital at or near the mouth of the Columbia river.

The commerce of this Territory is of very rapid increase. From a few arrivals yearly, they have become almost daily. And not unfrequently the sick are put ashore at Astoria and other places, without means of support; and, there being no suitable place for their reception, there must eventually be a great amount of suffering, without any adequate means of preventing or alleviating it.

Your honorable body is therefore urgently requested to make provision for the immediate establishment of a hospital at Astoria, or some other suitable place at or near the mouth of the Columbia river.

Passed the House of Representatives December 19, 1850.

R. WILCOX,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Passed the Council December 12, 1850.

WM. W. BUCK,
President of the Council.

RESOLUTIONS relative to the granting of additional bounty lands to certain officers and soldiers of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve.

Resolved, That the governor be requested to forward copies of this resolution to the speakers of the two houses of Congress.

JOHN CESSNA,

BENJ. MATTHIAS,

Sir: I have the honor to transmit the foregoing copy of certain "resolutions relative to the granting of additional bounty lands to certain officers and soldiers of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve," adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives of this commonwealth.

Very respectfully, yours, &c.,

WM. F. JOHNSTON.

Hon. Wm. R. King,
President of Senate of United States.

31st Congress, 2d Session. [SENATE.] Miscellaneous, No. 32.

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES.

March 3, 1851.
Read, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Jones submitted for consideration the following

RESOLUTION:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of revising so much of the laws for the government of the navy as relate to the institution of naval courts-martial in certain cases, and to report thereon the third Monday in January next:

1. That, whenever the Secretary of the Navy shall be the accuser or prosecutor of any commissioned officer, the court-martial for the trial of such officer shall be appointed by the senior naval officer on duty in the United States, whose powers and jurisdiction over the whole proceedings in the case shall be the same as exercised by the commander of a squadron or fleet out of the United States under the existing law.

2. That courts-martial hereafter instituted for the trial of a commander-in-chief of a squadron or fleet shall be a full court of thirteen members.

3. That, with a view to the service, as well as economy, both in time and in bringing to trial officers of the navy, and in conducting the proceedings of naval courts-martial, no civilian shall hereafter be employed as judge advocate.

4. That the judge advocate shall hereafter be appointed from the officers of the line of the navy, as practised in the army, whose extra compensation shall not exceed two dollars per day while officiating as judge advocate.

REPORT

OF THE

PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE PRO TEMPORE

AND

THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE,

OF

The lettings of the printing for the 32d Congress, under the joint resolution of the 3d August, 1846, and the contracts relating to the same.

March 3, 1851.

Read, and ordered to be printed.

The undersigned have the honor to report to the Senate, that in pursuance of the joint resolution of the 3d August, 1846, advertisements were published for four weeks successively, in all the newspapers printed in the city of Washington, for proposals for executing the printing of the thirty-second Congress; that sealed proposals were received from various persons, (eleven in number,) which were duly opened as required by the said resolution; that, after a full examination and comparison of all the proposals, it was ascertained that A. Boyd Hamilton, of Philadelphia, was the lowest bidder for the printing of all the five classes, and that contracts and bonds, with security deemed sufficient, have been executed by the said A. Boyd Hamilton, for the execution of the printing for which his proposals were accepted.

March 3, 1851.

To the Honorables William R. King, President pro tempore of the Senate; Howell Cobb, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Asbury Dickins, Secretary of the Senate; and Richard M. Young, Clerk of the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN: In compliance with your order of the 8th instant to wit:

"Ordered, That W. Hickey, as secretary to this board on the part of the Senate, and Daniel Buck, as secretary on the part of the House of Representatives, respectively proceed to make calculations based upon the quantities of printing of each class executed under the present contract system for the two houses of Congress, in pursuance of orders passed at the first session of the thirtieth Congress; and that upon these data they respectively ascertain the cost of each description of work, and the aggregate cost of the whole printing of Congress for each class, according to the terms of each proposal, and make report thereof, separately, when completed, to this board at a future meeting:"

The undersigned beg leave to submit the following report, viz:

The proposals opened in the presence of the board, upon which these calculations were to be made, were from A. Baptiste, jr., William Flinn, John T. Towers, Robert Farnham, Jacob Gideon, Alanson Cook, John Bowen, John C. Rives, A. Boyd Hamilton, Joseph T. Crowell, and John S. Nafew.

The calculations having been separately made, and the results found to concur in each of the classes of printing, the tables showing these results are herewith submitted, to wit:

Table No. 1.—First class.
Table No. 2.—Second class.
Table No. 3.—Third class.
Table No. 4.—Fourth class.
Table No. 5.—Part A—Fifth class.
Table No. 6.—Part B " "
Table No. 7.—Part C " "
Table No. 8.—Recapitulation of the several parts of the fifth class.
Table No. 9.—Statement showing the amounts of the several proposals for each class of the printing of the 32d Congress, as calculated upon the quantities of printing of the two houses of Congress ordered at the first session of the thirtieth Congress; and showing, also, the aggregate amount of the proposals of the several individuals for the printing of all the classes upon that data, together with the average amount of the whole.

From these statements it will appear that A. Boyd Hamilton is the lowest bidder in all the classes for the printing of the thirty-second Congress.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOINT RESOLUTION directing the manner of procuring the printing for the two houses of Congress.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives be, and they are hereby, authorized and required, at the beginning of the final session of every Congress, to advertise for four weeks successively in all the newspapers published in the city of Washington, for sealed proposals for supplying the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, of the next ensuing Congress, with the necessary printing for each; which advertisement shall describe the kind of printing and the quality of paper required, as near as may be, in the execution of the work; and said advertisement shall divide and classify the printing of the respective houses, as follows: One of bills and resolutions; one of reports of committees; one of journals; one of executive documents, and one for every other description of printing; each class to be a separate job, and to be provided for by separate contract. The said advertisement shall also contain a designation of the place in the said city of Washington where such sealed proposals shall be received, and the day and time of day at which said Secretary and Clerk will cease to receive any further proposals. And the Secretary and Clerk aforesaid shall provide suitable samples of the printing required, and of the paper on which the same is to be executed, to be kept at the place so designated as aforesaid at least twenty days successively before the time of receiving proposals shall expire, open to the inspection of all persons desiring to make proposals for the printing aforesaid, intelligence whereof shall be contained in said advertisement. Immediately on the expiration of the time for receiving said proposals, they shall be opened by the Secretary and Clerk aforesaid, in the presence of the Vice President, or President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and of such persons making proposals as may wish to be present. And the Secretary of the Senate, under the supervision of the Vice President, or President of the Senate, and the Clerk of the House of Representatives, under the supervision of the Speaker, shall thereupon let each class of said printing to the lowest bidder, who shall furnish satisfactory evidence of his practical skill, and his ability to do the work, and who shall offer good and sufficient security for the faithful execution of the jobs and contracts undertaken by him. And thereupon the Vice President, or President of the Senate, and its Secretary, and the Speaker of the House, and its Clerk, shall proceed to take bonds, with good and sufficient security for the due and faithful performance of the work; and the officers aforesaid shall immediately thereafter report to their respective houses all such lettings of printing, and the contracts relating to the same: Provided, That the said proposals shall remain sealed until the time appointed for examining the same.

SEC. 2. And be it further resolved, That a committee, consisting of three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, shall be chosen by their respective houses, which shall constitute a Committee on Printing, which shall have power to adopt such measures as may be deemed necessary to remedy any neglect or delay on the part of the contractor to execute the work ordered by Congress, and to make a pro rata reduction in the compensation allowed, or to refuse the work altogether, should it be inferior to the standard; and in all cases, the contractor and his securities shall be responsible for any increased expenditure consequent upon the non-performance of the contract. The committee shall audit and pass upon all accounts for printing; but no bill shall be acted upon for work that is not actually executed and delivered, and which they may require to be properly authenticated.

SEC. 3. And be it further resolved, That all motions to print extra numbers of any bill, paper, or document, in either house, shall be referred to the members of the committee of that house, who shall report upon the propriety of printing, and the probable expense thereof, as early as convenient. And all expenses for printing shall be paid from the contingent fund of the two houses in proportion to the number of copies ordered by each, except the expense of composition, which shall be paid by the house which shall have first ordered the printing of the paper or document; and if there shall be a second composition, it shall be paid for by the house which shall authorize and direct the same; and when extra copies of any document or paper shall be ordered by both houses, they shall be delivered to the two houses simultaneously, in proportion to the number of copies by them respectively ordered.

SEC. 4. And be it further resolved, That all laws and parts of laws now in force, not in conformity with the provisions of this joint resolution, be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Approved August 3, 1846.

PRINTING OF CONGRESS.

In compliance with the "Joint resolution directing the manner of procuring the printing for the two houses of Congress," Approved August 8, 1846, sealed proposals will be received by the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives for supplying the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, with the necessary printing for each for the thirty-second Congress. The proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Senate, in the Capitol, at Washington, until 10 o'clock in the forenoon of Saturday, the 8th day of February, 1851, and no longer. Blank tabular forms of proposals, with suitable samples of the paper on which the printing is to be executed, and of the printing, will be kept at the said office until that time, and furnished, on application, to all persons desiring to make proposals, and no proposal will be received which is not according to those forms. Each class of printing, including the printing for the Senate and the printing for the House of Representatives, will form a separate job, and is to be provided for by a separate contract.

The first class will consist of bills and joint resolutions, to be printed with English type, and with an English white line between each printed line; the page to be of folio size, 52 ems long and 28 ems wide, and printed on cap writing paper of fine quality, each sheet to measure not less than 13 by 16 inches, and the single ream to weigh not less than fourteen pounds. The proposals must state the price per page, containing 1,456 ems, for composition, and the price per page for press-work, paper, folding, and stitching, for 580 copies, and at the same rate for any greater number not exceeding 1,000 copies.

The second class will consist of reports of committees, with such documents and papers as may accompany them, with an index to the whole; to be printed on double royal paper of fine quality, each sheet to measure not less than 24 by 38 inches, and each ream to weigh not less than fifty pounds, with a neat small pica type, and not leaded, in octavo pages of the same size as required by the joint resolution of the 3d of March, 1849, and to be 55 ems long and 31 ems wide. Where the matter suitable for a page cannot be brought into the octavo form with small pica type, neat brevier type will be used, the page to be 70 ems long by 41 ems wide. The proposals must state the price per page of 1,705 ems for composition for small pica plain and for small pica rule, the price per page of 2,870 ems of bevier plain and of bevier rule, and the price per page for press-work, paper, folding and stitching of the octavo form for 1,250 copies, and at the same rate for any greater number not exceeding 1,500 copies. Where the construction of tables belonging to this class requires them to be printed in a form larger than octavo, but to be folded in octavo, the proposals will state the price per 1,000 ems for composition in brevier rule work, and the price for the press work, paper, folding and stitching of each table for 1,250 copies, and at the same rate for any greater number not exceeding 1,500 copies. As a number of copies of each document are to be reserved for binding, and delivered to the binder in sheets, each proposal will state the price or rate to be deducted per page, per 100 copies, for the folding and stitching of the octavo printing, and the price or rate per 100 copies to be deducted for the folding and stitching of each printed table larger than octavo. The proposals will also state the additional price for 100 copies, when delivered stitched, for the folding and stitching of each map, chart, diagram, or plate, of any size or shape, that may accompany any printed report or document of this class. For the copies which are to be bound this charge is not to be made.

The third class will consist of the journals of each house, with the appendix, tables, and index thereto; to be printed in the same manner, form, and type, and upon the same paper, as the octavo printing of the second class; and the proposals will state the same particulars as are required for the second class, except that the price for press work, paper, folding, and stitching of the journals will be stated for 1,250 copies, and at the same rate for any greater number not exceeding 1,550 copies.

The fourth class will consist of the executive documents of each house, embracing messages from the President, reports from the several executive departments, offices, and bureaus, and the documents and statements communicated therewith, with an index to the whole, to be printed in the same manner, form, type, and size, and upon the same paper, as the second class; and the proposals must state the same particulars as are required for the second class.

The fifth class will consist of every other description of printing not included in the preceding classes, and will be divided as follows:

Part A.—Resolutions and other documents from State legislatures, memorials, petitions, and all other papers or documents not included in parts B and C of this class. This part of the fifth class to be printed in the same manner, form, type, and size, and upon the same paper, as the second class; and the proposals must state the same particulars as are required for the second class.

Part B.—Treaties, messages, reports, and other papers and documents ordered to be printed in confidence for the use of the Senate, to be printed in the same manner, form, type and size, and upon the same paper, as the second class; and the proposals must state the same particulars as are required for the second class, except that the price for press work, paper, folding, and stitching of this part will be stated for 65 copies, and at the same rate for any greater number not exceeding 100 copies. This part B is for the Senate alone.

Part C.—Tabular statements of the orders of the day, lists of yeas and nays, circular letters, and all other printing of a miscellaneous character, not included in either of the other classes, or in parts A and B of this class; and the proposals will state the price per 1,000 ems for composition, in whatever type, size, or form that may be required, for plain work, and the price for rule and figure work, and also the price per page for press-work, paper, folding and stitching, per one hundred copies of each of the following sizes, viz: royal octavo, or any size smaller, quarto post, folio cap, or any size larger than folio cap.

The proposals will state the per centage deduction on the prices for press-work, paper, folding, and stitching, (as stated under the second class,) for furnishing additional copies of matter included in either of the aforesaid classes—this is to say: the per centage deduction of any number exceeding 1,500, and not exceeding 5,000; for any number exceeding 5,000, and not exceeding 10,000; for any number exceeding 10,000, and not exceeding 20,000; and for any number exceeding 20,000 copies. The deduction in every case to have reference to, and to be calculated upon, the whole number of any document ordered.

All the type specified above must be of the regular size of its kind, and must not be placed upon any but a regular body, belonging to such size and kind of type. The ink used to be of a fine quality book ink, and the printing to be executed in the best manner.

When additional copies are ordered, they are to be printed on the same paper, with the same ink, and in the same style, as the usual number.

All printed documents intended to be bound must be delivered by the printer in sheets from time to time, as they may come from the press, to the binder, as may be directed by the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives, respectively.

Each person is required to furnish, with the proposals, satisfactory evidence of his practical skill and his ability to do the work, and to offer at the same time good and sufficient security, to be so certified by a judge or clerk of the United States court of the district, or of the marshal of the district, in which the sureties may reside, for the faithful execution of the jobs and contracts proposed to be undertaken by him, and any proposal unaccompanied with such evidence will be rejected.

The proposals will be opened in the manner required by law, on Saturday, the 8th day of February, 1851, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Vice President's chamber, in the Capitol.

ASBURY DICKINS,
Secretary of the Senate.

JAMES C. VANDYKE,
WM. BADGER,
LEWIS PELOUZE.

PHILADELPHIA, February 6, 1851.

DEAR SIR: I have no difficulty in expressing an opinion, that Mr. Peacock and Mr. Graham, whose names are signed to the certificate attached to your proposals, are well qualified to judge of a printer's ability; and that Mr. Vandyke, Mr. Badger, and Mr. Pelouze have the character of substantial men in our community. But I cannot make this the subject of an official certificate, nor can I say that any or all of them are in my belief good and sufficient as sureties,* for an amount which is not set forth.

I shall be very sorry if my declining to make the required certificate shall in anywise prejudice your application, for I have no doubt the government would be well served under any contract you might enter into for public printing.

Very respectfully, yours,

J. K. KANE.
